Glenn Douglas, owner of LA Custom Pools and Spas, Inc. said he was delighted with the over 100 logos submitted in the design contest the business organized to get a new look. "We were really pleased," he said.

He thanked staff members Lynn Clemente and Larry Marino for their hard work organizing and running the contest as well as Yucaipa Valley Chamber of Commerce and the News Mirror for its assistance and then started the award presentations to the winners.

"All contestants have something they can be proud of," said Douglas. "What great talent we have in this city."

He also told the story about how an acquaintance suggested the contest was a bold move and how it may not have worked out. He added that they did it because Yucaipa has embraced LA Custom Pools. In the last four to five years, LA Pools has built the most pools in the city over other businesses and he expressed his appreciation for that.

"It was tough picking the winners, though," Douglas said, as he called the finalists to the front one by one, in no particular order. Each got a photo, a plaque and a gift certificate to the soon to open Chili's restaurant.

The youngest participant was Gwen Powell, 7, and the oldest was David Baker, 72. Douglas displayed their hand-drawn logos.

In the 0-12 age range, Riley McLeod received a $300 gift certificate for Yucaipa Bike Center and Cody Christensen, 13, won the same in the 13-17 category. In the 18 and over designation, Brad Hood received a 80 gig i-pod for first place.

Douglas then named Tim Crowley as the grand prize winner and presented him with a check for $1,000.

Crowley said he came up with the design after he went to their website and got a feel of what LA Pools liked and incorporated the sun and palm tree to represent California. He "focused on designing a logo that would work on something large or as small as a business card."

Clemente said several hundred people voted on the logos at the Yucaipa Iris Festival and their votes were very similar to those from the business.

Douglas said while the logo did not include color, they may add some in the future.

"We will hold onto all of the logos as they will become part of our portfolio," Douglas said.

Refreshments were enjoyed and radio station 590 KTIE with Bev St. Andrews did an interview to be featured Sunday morning at 9:30 a.m.

Mayor Dick Riddell said to Douglas, "I really appreciate you doing this. It's real hometown spirit." Riddell expressed his approval of the choice saying Crowley was a deserving winner.
