

Making a Difference

JUMPING INTO A tropical oasis after a long days' work was one of the goals of these homeowners in Redlands, California. Achieving this dream was not an easy task to begin with. The owners spent hours with another design firm before realizing their project wasn't getting the attention and focus that it needed. Getting the right design team makes all the difference. The design team at L.A. Custom Pools and Spas, Inc., came to the rescue.

Establishing the client's objectives was the first task. This client desired a large waterscape for entertaining. Entertainment both in the water and around the water also needed attention. A casita, a basketball court, retaining walls, exterior lighting, landscaping and irrigation were desired. Once the primary and secondary reasons for the yard were established, the team went to work.

During the design stage, the client and the team spent equal time identifying the concept and the finished materials. The natural materials included flagstone, silver and gold quartz and a dark-bottom PebbleTec finish. The 10-foot-deep pool was equipped with wireless automation, five pool lights and two 400,000 BTU heaters.

In the end, the right design team made the difference.
